DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for a composition which contains all of the components and is produced from intestinal and testicular tissue of the male blue crab, does not reasonably provide enablement for less than all of the components or a composition contain all the components which is not produced intestinal and testicular tissue of the male blue crab. The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention commensurate in scope with these claims.

The nature of the invention:

The invention is directed to a mixture components which comprises any combination of the listed components which is for attracting female crabs.

The state of the prior art and the predictability or lack thereof in the art:

The prior art does not appear to disclose a female blue crab attractant containing two or more of the claimed components.

The amount of direction or guidance present and the presence or absence of working examples:

Art Unit: 1616

The only working example is an produced from intestinal or testicular tissue of male blue crab which apparently contains every component listed. There is no indication as to what components or mixture of fewer components would be effective.

The breadth of the claims and the quantity of experimentation needed:

The claims are broad in that they claim any combination of components. As such, it appears that one of ordinary skill in the art would be required to do undue experimentation in order to determine which combinations and in what amounts are effective in attracting female blue crabs.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Beck et al. (US Pat. 5,064,580).

Beck et al. expressly discloses a mixture of docasane or eicosane (Claim 23).
